The Toss Of A Coin

How to determine which decision is best
You have just been offered a promotion at work, but it will require you to be away from your family much of the time. Yet your family could use the extra income. How will you decide which is best?

Making difficult decisions is something that everyone has to do from time to time. Whether it is determining what house to buy or which daycare will be best for your child, decision-making can be very stressful.

There are several criteria to consider before you make your decision. Following these guidelines will help to ensure that you choose what is best for you and your family.

Know all your options
Before you decide anything, make sure you know all the options available to you. This will keep you from later regretting your decision when you hear of other options.

Get plenty of advice
Talk to your friends about your options. Maybe you know someone who is knowledgeable about your situation. They might let you know of ideas you hadn't yet considered and give you helpful advice.

Think through all of the consequences
Consider the end result of the options. Do you think you will be pleased with your choice in a year? By considering all angles, you will be less likely to have to deal with unpleasant surprises or situations.

Give it time
Don't make any rash decisions. If you feel forced into making a particular decision, it probably isn't a wise choice.

When you think you know what you want to do, sleep on it overnight. Make sure that you still feel the same way the next day.

You can make good decisions. Instead of getting stressed, you can be relaxed, knowing that you are making the best choice possible.